TOPIC: INDIA'S ROLE IN WORLD PEACEKEEPING

How PM Modi can out-Nehru Nehru on the global stage

India's Potential Role in Global Peacekeeping

- The article highlights India's opportunity to redefine its role on the global stage by deploying peacekeepers to Ukraine, particularly after a potential ceasefire.
- This would position India as a key player in global peacekeeping, showcasing its ability to mediate conflicts and contribute to global stability.
- By playing such a role, India can strengthen its diplomatic influence and further its ambitions for a permanent seat in the UN Security Council.

Peacekeeping Proposal

- India could publicly commit to deploying peacekeepers in Ukraine, focusing on humanitarian aid and border monitoring after the ceasefire is in place.
- The peacekeeping mission would ideally be carried out under a UN mandate or a coalition framework, ensuring that the mission is backed by international legitimacy and aimed at establishing a lasting peace in the region.

Strategic Messaging

- India needs to assert its neutrality and show its capability to mediate between global powers, navigating tensions between the West, Russia, and other global players.
- By highlighting its previous peacekeeping contributions in countries like Congo and Sudan, India can reinforce its credibility as a stabilizing force in international affairs.
- The mission should be framed as a non-NATO effort, aimed at reassuring Russia while also securing European financial support for the initiative.

Execution Strategy

- India could begin with small contingents focused on civilian protection and ceasefire monitoring in Ukraine.
- Modern technologies, including drones and surveillance systems, would be integrated to ensure effective monitoring and protection, enhancing India's image as a capable global player in peacekeeping operations.

Long-term Impact

- By 2026, India could emerge as a significant global stabilizer, gaining moral and diplomatic influence on the world stage.

MAKING YOU SERVE THE NATION

- This initiative would help India strengthen its bid for a permanent seat in the UN Security Council, highlighting its growing role as a global power.
- India's involvement could result in European gratitude (in the form of financial aid), Russian cooperation (especially in terms of continued oil trade), and U.S. support, all of which would further elevate India's global position.

Global South Leadership

- India's active role in the Ukraine peacekeeping mission would strengthen its position as the voice of the Global South, acting as a bridge between the developed West and the developing world.
- Unlike past imperialist interventions, India's involvement would be framed as a genuine commitment to peace and stability, helping to reshape perceptions of its global role.

Diplomatic Transformation

- Under the leadership of Prime Minister Narendra Modi, India's approach to diplomacy could evolve from the more charismatic "Gaga diplomacy" to a more composed and influential style of global statesmanship.
- This shift would mark India's rise as a decisive power on the world stage, ready to shape world affairs with a steady hand and strategic vision.

Conclusion

- India has a historic opportunity to redefine its role in global diplomacy by taking an active role in peacekeeping in Ukraine.
- This initiative would not only boost India's strategic and moral stature but also position it as a leading force in shaping a balanced, multipolar world order. By doing so, India could emerge as a central player in global governance, contributing to peace and stability in the world.
