PM Modi leaves for 2-day Saudi Arabia visit, lauds 'strategic depth, momentum' of bilateral ties

Context and Significance of the Visit

- Prime Minister Narendra Modi's visit to Saudi Arabia signals a deepening strategic relationship between India and the Gulf kingdom.
- The timing is crucial, as both India and Saudi Arabia undergo parallel internal transformations, led by reformist leaders—Modi and Crown Prince Mohammed bin Salman (MbS).
- This visit is positioned not just as a diplomatic ritual, but as a marker of a new era of multi-dimensional, future-oriented cooperation.

From Underperformance to Acceleration in Bilateral Ties

- Historically, Indo-Saudi ties were lukewarm. Only six Indian Prime Ministerial visits to Saudi Arabia took place between 1947 and the early 2000s.
- India's past engagement was restrained by ideological caution, a conservative foreign policy, and viewing Saudi Arabia primarily through a Pakistan-centric lens.
- A turnaround began in the early 2000s with higher-level exchanges, but the real momentum accelerated under Modi's leadership since 2016, with three significant visits.
- This signals India's shift from passive diplomacy to strategic prioritization of the Gulf region.

Strategic and Economic Convergence

- The relationship has evolved beyond oil trade and Indian diaspora ties.
- India and Saudi Arabia are now cooperating in:
 - Counterterrorism and intelligence sharing
 - Technology transfer and innovation
 - Infrastructure and investment projects
 - Renewable energy and industrial development
- The frequency of bilateral visits and MoUs indicates a maturing, multi-sectoral partnership.

The MbS Factor: Modernising Saudi Arabia

- Crown Prince Mohammed bin Salman's leadership has driven sweeping economic, political, and social reforms.
- Governance has shifted from traditional consensus to a centralised and decisive model, enabling faster implementation but attracting criticism over authoritarian methods.
- MbS's leadership has resulted in Saudi Arabia repositioning itself as a progressive and reform-oriented power.

Vision 2030: Reshaping the Saudi Economy

- Vision 2030 is MbS's flagship reform agenda aimed at diversifying Saudi Arabia's oil-dependent economy.
- Key initiatives include:
 - Privatisation of Aramco
 - Creation of Neom – a futuristic mega-city focused on AI, sustainability, and smart infrastructure
 - Growth in sectors like tourism, entertainment, and technology
- The goal is not just economic growth but a rebranding of Saudi Arabia as a hub for global investment and innovation.

Cultural Liberalisation and Social Reform

- MbS has brought unprecedented cultural liberalisation:
 - Women's mobility and workforce participation have expanded
 - Public entertainment including cinemas, concerts, and sports has returned
 - Youth-centric policies have revitalized urban life and employment opportunities
- The state is promoting a "moderate Islam", seeking to reduce radical influences and align more with global norms.

A More Assertive and Multipolar Foreign Policy

- Saudi Arabia under MbS has adopted a pragmatic and diversified foreign policy:
 - It has reduced reliance on the U.S. and built ties with China, Russia, and BRICS countries

- It balances between military assertiveness and diplomatic recalibration in the Middle East
- Saudi Arabia seeks to become a decisive actor in a multipolar global order

Echoes of India's Own Foreign Policy Shift

- India's foreign policy under Modi similarly shifted from ideology to pragmatism, emphasizing strategic autonomy.
- Both nations are:
 - Leveraging geopolitical location
 - Engaging in multilateral diplomacy
 - Acting as mediators in regional disputes
 - Promoting economic self-reliance and innovation
- This shared strategic worldview sets the stage for greater Indo-Saudi alignment in global and regional affairs.

Geostrategic Implications and Long-Term Vision

- The Indo-Saudi partnership is likely to influence:
 - The future of West Asian geopolitics
 - The energy transition agenda of both nations
 - Trade connectivity through the India-Middle East-Europe Economic Corridor (IMEEC)
 - Digital and defense cooperation
- India can emerge as a key partner in Saudi Arabia's Vision 2030 execution, while Riyadh can support India's West Asia policy.

Conclusion: Defining a 21st-Century Partnership

- Modi's visit symbolizes more than bilateral warmth—it represents India and Saudi Arabia's ascent as reforming middle powers with transformative ambitions.
- Both leaders are redefining national identity, governance, and diplomacy in their respective countries.
- As Saudi Arabia modernizes and India globalizes, this partnership could become a pillar of future geopolitics, especially across the Global South and West Asia.
